Beleaguered Fifa delays 2026 World Cup bidding

Secretary general says it would be 'nonsense' to start the process 'due to the situation'

Reuters in Samara, Russia

Fifa will postpone the start of bidding for the right to host the 2026 World Cup following the launch of a corruption investigation, a senior official in soccer's global governing body said yesterday.

"Due to the situation, I think it is nonsense to start any bidding process for the time being. It will be postponed," Fifa secretary general Jerome Valcke said.

The decision on who hosts the 2026 finals had been due to be made in Kuala Lumpur in 2017. The US had been expected to bid for the rights.

The US FBI is investigating bribery and corruption at Fifa, including security of host cities. Cup hosting rights were awarded to Russia, which won the bidding for 2018, and Qatar, which is due to host the finals in 2022.

Valcke made the announcement in the Russian city of Samara, one of the host venues, where he was checking preparations for the 2018 finals.

Despite investigations into the bidding process involving Russia and Qatar, Russian Sports Minister Vitaly Mutko said he saw no threat to Moscow's bid. He reiterated that it had been in line with the rules, as did Valcke.

As secretary general since 2007, and as president Sepp Blatter's lieutenant, Valcke is seen as one of the most powerful men in world sport.

The Frenchman also issued a new denial of allegations of wrongdoing over US$10 million in bank transactions that are under investigation by US authorities.

The funds - allegedly paid on behalf of the South African government - were transferred in 2008 to another Fifa official, Jack Warner, who was then the president of Concacaf, which governs soccer in North and Central America and the Caribbean.

Valcke said there were no grounds to blame him or Fifa over the way the funds were used. Fifa has also said he had no role in the payments.

"I really don't understand what is the problem and why I am such a target with this question," Valcke said.

"I am signing contracts every day - everything has the signature of the secretary general," he said. "But it's not because I am signing everything that I am responsible for the way people are acting all around the world."

Valcke said he had been fiercely criticised in the media.

"I don't have to justify myself. Except maybe from my father who is 80 years old and doesn't understand what is going on around me. He is the only person I would still answer questions from about this," he said.

SUSPECTED MERS CASES AT CITY HEALTH CENTRES

For the first time, tests ordered on patients picked up away from the airport as mainland officials warn of 'significant' increase in threat

Health-Care medical centres yesterday. One was a young woman who visited Seoul between May 26 and 30, and sought treatment for fever and diarrhoea at the centre in Prince's Building in Causeway Bay.

Another young woman, who was in South Korea last Friday and Saturday, had a fever and a running nose after the trip. She went to the group's clinic in Pacific Centre, Tsim Sha Tsui, and was sent to Queen Elizabeth Hospital.

when the news of the first suspected case broke.

On the mainland, Mao Qun, an spokesman of the National Health and Family Planning Commission in Beijing, said the country's risk of imported Mers cases had increased.

Because our country has relatively frequent contact with people from South Korea and the Middle East, and especially now that South Korea has an outbreak, our experts have assessed that the risk of importing cases has increased significantly," he said.

The commission said on its official microblog that a Chinese citizen working at a South Korean hospital was confirmed to be infected with Mers.

But Mao sidestepped the issue of whether Beijing would follow decisions by Taipei, Hong Kong and Macau to issue travel warnings against South Korea.

"Whether we are going to issue any ban or warning or travelling, it's something we need to discuss with members of our tourism department," he said.

A 44-year-old man, who is the son of a confirmed Mers patient in South Korea, is being treated in a hospital in Huizhou in southern Guangdong province. The man travelled to Huizhou late last month via Hong Kong.

The Southern Metropolis News reported all 75 people who had come into close contact with the 44-year-old after he entered the mainland were sent to finish 14 days of quarantine after testing negative for the virus.

Suu Kyi honoured as Beijing breaks with tradition

Chinese ambassador sees off Myanmar's opposition leader on maiden mainland visit

Andrew Chan and Lawrence Chung

In a rare break from protocol, China's ambassador to Myanmar was at Yangon airport yesterday to see off Myanmarese opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi as she left on her maiden visit to Beijing.

During the five-day trip, Suu Kyi was expected to meet President Xi Jinping (习近平) and Premier Li Keqiang (李克强) in her capacity as chairwoman of Myanmar's National League for Democracy (NLD) spokeswoman said.

After her arrival yesterday, Suu Kyi met with Wang Jiarui, director of the Central Committee's international department, and exchanged views on relations between the two countries.

Her visit comes as China and Myanmar celebrate 65 years of bilateral relations. A reception marking the milestone in Yangon on Monday - attended by China's ambassador Yang Jinxian and Myanmar's Vice-President Sai Maung Kham - was low-key compared with celebrations in 2010 and 2005 that were graced either by the presence of, or greetings from, Chinese leaders.

Analysts say the latest event suggests Beijing believes Suu Kyi is likely to win Myanmar's upcoming election - if the race - and hopes to restore amicable bilateral ties through her.

"Beijing is hedging its bets on a politically ascendant Suu Kyi," said Aixin Cheng-hui Lin, of the Singapore-based Longus Institute for Development and Strategy.

Tensions escalated in March after five Chinese died when a Myanmar warplane accidentally dropped a bomb on the Chinese side of the border during conflict in the Kokang region.

Xiamen University professor Fan Hongwei (范洪伟) said Beijing was likely to rely on Suu Kyi's help to clear the air between the two nations, especially over the dam suspension.

"Suu Kyi and the NLD's words have weight in Myanmar," Fan said. "Beijing would welcome her help to

gy. "The honour extended to her signifies Beijing's anticipation of a regime change in Myanmar."

Myanmar was important to China given its strategic location as a land corridor to the Indian Ocean, Lin said, but relations had suffered after the Thin Sein administration suspended the China-backed Myittha Dam project in 2011 over environmental concerns. He said the suspension greatly embarrassed Beijing as it had just upgraded ties with Myanmar shortly after Thin Sein took office that year.

Gay lawmaker launches complaint after abuse

Lawmaker Raymond Chan Chi-cham yesterday filed a complaint with the Equal Opportunities Commission after two women on an MTR train involved his sexual orientation. The commission said it would get back to him in a month on whether a file would be opened on his complaint. In a two-minute video uploaded on YouTube by Chan, a woman called him a "fubish councillor". She went on to verbally abuse him more explicitly.

A 30-year-old Pakistani man has been arrested at a beach in Tuen Mun on suspicion of murdering his Indonesian girlfriend, Azzah Supardi Wiji, who was found dead in a folded mattress in Changsha Street, Mong Kok, on Monday. A 21-year-old male friend of the suspect was also arrested for assisting an offender to escape. A postmortem examination found injuries to the woman's head.

Banker bailed over Ferrari death crash

Clifford Lai Clifford Lai

A banker whose HK$4.5 million Ferrari was involved in a crash that killed a security guard in West Kowloon on Tuesday was granted police bail yesterday.

Robert Ebert, Deutsche Bank's head of equities for Asia-Pacific, was arrested on Tuesday night on suspicion of dangerous driving causing death. His 1991 458 Spider was impounded in a government vehicle plant in Ho Man Tin pending inspection.

Ebert, 45, must report back to Hong Kong police station next month, according to police. He has not been charged.

The arrest was made after the crash at the ground-level public transport interchange on Austin Road West shortly before 6am.

"We are investigating whether the car was driving beyond the speed limit of 30km/h at the time," a police source said.

Deutsche Bank declined to comment on the case yesterday.

It is understood Ebert was driving his office at the International Commerce Centre above the public transport interchange at the time of the crash.

According to police, the sports car ran out of control while negotiating a sharp right bend.

"It went straight into the waterfront car park's entrance, where it slammed into plastic barriers filled with water and allegedly hit the security guard," the source said. He said flying fragments hit a Maserati sports car about to drive out the car park.

The 53-year-old security guard suffered multiple injuries and was taken to Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Yau Ma Tei, where he was declared dead at about 2pm.

Ebert was unharmed in the incident. Police said he passed a breathalyzer test.

"The driver claimed his car's brakes did not work at the time of the incident," the source said, adding that police were arranging an inspection with the Transport Department's vehicle examiner.

He said police would also check security camera footage to collect evidence. "We are investigating all possibilities that may have led to the crash," he said.

Vehicle registration records showed Ebert bought the car for HK$4.5 million in January 2013. Police figures showed 54 people died on the roads in the first five months of this year, up from 30 in the same period last year.

TWO THOUSANDS TO PROTEST AT LEGCO FOR VOTE

Activists on both sides will demonstrate for several days next week, while 7,000 police with riot gear will be ready to step in if chaos erupts

Joyce Ng and Ng Kang-chung

Tens of thousands of protesters are expected to turn up at rallies for and against the government's political reform package next week when the Legislative Council is to debate and vote on it.

Police have received special training in anticipation of possible clashes, said Secretary for Security Lai Tung-kwok, adding that the government had also conducted risk assessments in order to prepare for possible emergencies.

Lai said Hongkongers were "highly concerned another round of occupation could take place". He warned protesters to "keep a distance" from radicals who may infiltrate the crowds during demonstrations.

"If there are any illegal acts, police will do all they can to go after those who break the law," Lai said at the weekly Legislative Council meeting yesterday. He declined to give details of the operation plan.

Police sources have said more than 7,000 officers equipped with riot gear such as canisters of tear gas, rubber bullets and pepper spray, will be prepared for possible chaos. Demonstrators who occupy carriageways illegally will be removed immediately.

Lai's comments in Legco came as the opposition group the area outside the Legco complex, including the public demonstration zone.

However, police rejected the group's request to block traffic on Tin Mei Avenue, a road on the east of the Legco complex, which would allow demonstrators to use the space.

Police know that the Legco demonstration area can only accommodate 2,000 people. They ignored our demand for more space for the expected turnout of 50,000," the group said in a statement. The Appeal Board on Public Meetings and Processions is to hold a hearing today on the group's appeal against the police decision.

The government is expected to table its resolution on the reform package on Wednesday next week. Lawmakers are then expected to vote on Thursday or Friday, after a debate.

All 27 pan-democrats have vowed to vote against the resolution, denying it the two-thirds majority support it needs in the 70-member Legco.

To counter the Front's rally, a pro-establishment group is planning its own demonstration outside Legco next Wednesday. The Alliance for Peace and Democracy - a coalition of more than 1,000 groups and individuals - is appealing for people to join the rally to encourage pan-democrats to depart from their opposition stance and vote for the package.

The alliance declined to speculate on the turnout, but said it would start early on June 17 and would last until June 18 or June 19, pending the final vote.

"Whether the legislators in the chamber know there are people outside backing them up. And there is not only one voice, the opposition voice, in the community," alliance spokesman Robert Chow Yung said.

The alliance organised a signature campaign in support of the reform plan last month. Some 1.2 million people were said to have signed it.

壹傳媒創辦人黎智英晚上出席亞洲出版業協會（SOPA）舉行的頒獎禮，離場時被記者問到對政改看法，他估計政改方案將被立法會否決，笑指「邊個肯做咁大個契弟呀」。黎智英又稱今年7.1將會出席，但政改表決當日則不在香港。

黎智英表示，早前有傳言中央會嘗試用錢買票，換取政改可以通過，但他斷言中央會徒勞無功。他又指，雖然中央官員早前曾在深圳與泛民會面，但相信泛民會堅定否決政改。不過，他認為政改困局始終需要解決，指政府遲早都要拿出雙方都可接受的方案，所以對香港未來政制發展仍感樂觀，而雨傘運動亦顯示，香港有年輕人願意繼續爭取，不會放棄。

今日立法會議員個人利益監察委員會發表報告，對多名議員收受黎智英捐款所引發的指控均不成立，被問到會否覺得報告還他一個清白，他表示「無睇到」。至於會否就捐款風波上立法會，黎智英指收到要出席會議的信件後便會出席，「梗係會（去）啦，佢叫我唔去點得呀，會去嘅」。也有記者問到會否擔心廉署調查，黎智英稱「無事呀」。

黎智英被問到如何將自己的政見與旗下傳媒分開，他回應指這是「無可避免」，尤其自己參與雨傘運動的前線，會將旗下傳媒引領到邊緣化，故最後選擇辭職，認為「傳媒應為大眾發聲，不是為黎智英發聲」。

對於現時越來越多小型、獨立網台出現，黎智英認為對傳媒生態有正面作用，因為這些新媒體會不斷創造出新的表達方法，「我們這些傳統傳媒人，只會跟既定方式去表達」。他又指一些網台的「stupid news」會有上百萬的點擊，稱人們現在不只要資訊，而是要透過點擊及分享新聞建立朋友間的關係，預料「新聞將被重新定義」，估計未來75%的新聞材料也是由流動裝置用家提供。

壹傳媒前主席黎智英本週三晚出席亞洲出版業協會 (SOPA) 頒獎禮，並擔任嘉賓，被問及下週三立法會將就政改方案辯論及表決，他認為方案必會被否決：「冇得唔否決，邊個肯做咁大個契弟？」

立法會議員個人利益監察委員會將繼續就工黨李卓人及社民連梁國雄被指收取捐款的投訴進行調查，黎智英說，如收到立會通知，會出席調查會議。

黎智英又分享了對新媒體、流動媒體的想法，他說二十年後必定是新媒體的世界，看報紙及雜誌的人會是少數。新媒體與讀者有互動，未來七成半新聞圖片、影片等資料會由讀者提供，記者則會進行跟進報道。而且新媒體的廣告比傳統媒體有彈性，可根據用戶喜好播放不同廣告。

被問及他認為本人是記者還是商人，他直言是媒體裡的商人。他又稱辭掉壹傳媒主席一職，是因為他的性格無可避免延伸到他的生意，在雨傘革命期間他走得很前，令旗下媒體被推至邊緣：「傳媒應報道市民的聲音，不是黎智英的聲音。」

亞洲最具權威的新聞大獎之一SOPA（亞洲卓越新聞獎），10日(三)晚上於香港公布。2015年，《今周刊》以新聞深度、社會關懷的報導及多元的解讀型式，在亞太地區逾600件作品中脫穎而出，摘下『女性議題新聞獎』、『卓越特寫攝影獎』2座獎項。

『女性議題新聞獎』首獎

《今周刊》896期『戰勝三個敵人做自己的主人-鏗鏘玫瑰』(Conquer three enemies being your own master: Powerful roses.)

《今周刊》長期關注女性議題與職涯發展，2014年，我們率先為女性發聲，做出「台灣女性經濟力」大調查。

調查中發現：台灣號稱女權亞洲第一，世界第二，但是女性平均薪資只有男性八成；企業中高階主管也只有23%是女性；同時，家中未成年子女主要照顧者高達七成四是女性，超過六成家庭最主要做家事的人也是女性。在家庭、工作兩頭燒的職業婦女，已經嚴重影響她們的身心健康。

本文引起媒體專題追蹤，讓各大企業及政府相關單位重視女性在職場與生活上所遭遇的不平等，審慎思考解決方案。

『卓越特寫攝影獎』優勝

《今周刊》925期『人的莊園』(Manor of Human)

攝影師周慶輝，這位張大春口中的「生命拾荒人」，不斷燃燒生命拍照敘事。

這次周慶輝與《今周刊》共同合作，完成了『人的莊園』專題企畫。

透過他的作品及《今周刊》編輯群文字的張力，呈現現代生活裡的人群，和所處的社會維持著什麼樣的關係，希冀喚醒人們應該停下腳步重新找尋如何「活著」的信念。

僅將得獎榮耀與大家共享，讀者的支持是我們勇往直前的最大動力。

《今周刊》仍將秉持媒體角色持續發掘真相、關懷社會！

提到佢辭去壹傳媒主席一職，佢話因為佢嘅性格，無可避免伸延到佢嘅生意，加上係兩傘革命期間，佢走係最前，令旗下媒體被推至邊緣。佢話：「傳媒應報道市民的聲音，不是黎智英的聲音，這是為什麼我要辭職。」

對於下週三立法會將就政改方案辯論及表決，黎智英離開時就指方案一定會被否決：「冇得唔否決，邊個肯做咁大個契弟？」

亚洲出版业协会（SOPA）2015年度“卓越新闻奖”昨晚揭晓，FT中文网包揽“评论写作类”（Opinion Writing）两项大奖。

中国资深媒体人笑蜀凭借为FT中文网撰写的《习近平的第三条道路》一文，获得“最佳评论奖”（Award of Excellence in Opinion Writing）。中国现代史学者吴伟凭借为FT中文网撰写的《邓小平打开的门和关上的窗》一文，获得“评论荣誉奖”（Honourable Mention in Opinion Writing）。

《习近平的第三条道路》发表于2014年中国“两会”前夕。作者笑蜀通过回顾中共十八届三中全会以来的政治和社会动向，试图探究新领导层为中国选择的发展路径。亚洲出版人协会评委会认为，本文就此提供了“极其细致而深入的解读”。

《邓小平打开的门和关上的窗》发表于邓小平诞辰110周年之际。曾任中共中央政治体制改革研究室研究员的吴伟凭借对中国政治的长期近距离观察，塑造了一个丰满立体、功过参半的政治强人形象。颁奖词写道：“文章很有技巧地将邓小平在中国发展中的角色，与中国政府的近期政策，包括反腐、体制和政治改革联系在了一起”。

SOPA是总部位于香港的非营利组织，其“卓越新闻奖”设立于1999年，以奖励亚洲地区传统媒体及新媒体上的优秀报道与评论为目标。本次评选总共收到来自亚太地区创纪录的622份新闻作品，由112位世界各地的评委甄选，最终97份作品获奖。

FT中文网近年来多次获得SOPA颁发的奖项。

英国《金融时报》（Financial Times）本次也凭借帕提·沃德米尔（Patti Waldmeir）的“生活在中国”系列报道，以及“2014印度大选”系列报道，分获所属类别的“最佳评论奖”和“评论荣誉奖”，此外还以一篇关于中国人徐京华的调查报告，获得“最佳调查报导新闻奖”（Award in Excellence in Investigative Reporting）。

Jakarta. The Jakarta Globe received an award for excellence in opinion writing for its editorial coverage last year at the 2015 Awards of The Society of Publishers in Asia (SOPA) on Wednesday night in Hong Kong.

The Globe won in the Group B category, which is reserved for publications or websites with readership smaller than that of major newspapers and services like the International New York Times and Reuters.

One of the editorial entries was for Sept. 26, 2014, which focused on legislators' decision in the waning days in office of President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono to pass a bill limiting direct elections. The title "Shame on SBY and His Non-Democrats" became a social media outcry for Indonesians, who took to Twitter by creating the hashtag #ShameOnYouSBY.

"Another example of fearless editorial commentary in a country in which it can still be dangerous to take on vested interests," a judge commented in the decision for the award.

The SOPA Awards for Editorial Excellence were established in 1999 as a tribute to editorial excellence in both traditional and new media, and were designed to encourage editorial vitality throughout the region, according to SOPA's website.

MacLean's series was based on her first-hand reporting in the streets of Bangkok with children and teenagers from around the region to explain how they ended up there.

"Online journalism may be preoccupied with the viral and trend-worthy, but we believe Dana's piece shows it can still champion traditional values of the press and do the heavy-lifting on important social issues," Coconuts Bangkok Managing Editor Todd Ruiz said.

Executive 日記—— 《頭條》漫畫奪亞洲金獎

頭條日報有說一張好嘅漫畫，勝過千言萬語。亞洲最具權威新聞大獎之一嘅亞洲卓越新聞獎（SOPA），前日公佈結果，星島新聞集團從眾多亞太區作品中脫穎而出，同時摘下「卓越漫畫獎」及「卓越資料圖像獎」金獎，可喜可賀！

恭喜恭喜！本集團於SOPA連中兩金，《頭條日報》嘅漫畫作品「衝呀！！」獲卓越漫畫獎，而《星島》嘅世紀排洪報道得到卓越資料圖像獎。Kelly睇「衝呀！！」呢幅漫畫，好有張力，出自星島副美術總監曾憲璋手筆。阿璋話，當時見佔領者手持鐵馬衝擊立法會玻璃門，激發其創作靈感，由構思到完成製作不過一小時，果然神速。

《星島》獲卓越資料圖像獎

阿璋最初想以攻城門手法表達事件，最後決定將鐵馬化成悍馬，示威者有如西部牛仔咁策馬前衝，好有動感。

原來呢幅政治漫畫係力壓著名政治漫畫家尊子奪金，阿璋話感到十分榮幸，特別多謝美術部及編採部同事嘞！

另外，《星島》嘅世紀排洪報道用咗3D嘅Infographic，助讀者化繁為簡，了解本港複雜又精密嘅渠務系統。Kelly再次恭喜美術團隊同事，希望佢哋攞獎不停手！

The English-language paper beat some of the best publications in the region to receive an Honourable Mention in the Human Rights Reporting category at the Society of Publishers in Asia’s annual awards night, held in Hong Kong on June 10.

The story, titled “Medical gap threatens lives in Rakhine” by Fiona MacGregor and Shwe Yee Saw Myint, described the difficulties in IDP camps in the Rakhine State capital Sittwe following the government’s decision to expel Médecins sans Frontières from Rakhine State.

Also shortlisted were Aung Htay Hlaing’s photographs of the Magwe Region oil fields, which were selected in the Excellence in Feature Photography category.

The award presentation ceremony at the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre was attended by about 300 people from media organisations throughout Asia. The announcement of the 97 awards was made during a gala dinner.

The Myanmar Times was competing in the category for English-language publications distributed in one or two countries, alongside newspapers like South China Morning Post, The Straits Times and the Jakarta Globe. The category also included magazines with a circulation under 50,000 and independent websites.

In 2014, The Myanmar Times received an honourable mention for news photography, while in previous years it has won the news photography, editorial cartooning and opinion writing categories.

The chair of SOPA, Raymond Warhola, congratulated The Myanmar Times personally on the sidelines of the ceremony.

The publisher and CEO of The Phnom Penh Post, Chris Dawe, said the SOPA awards were recognised throughout the region.

"The award is good for emerging countries like Myanmar and Cambodia. It gives international exposure," he said.

Once a sister publication with The Myanmar Times, The Phnom Penh Post received four awards at the ceremony.

Monique Hou, senior deputy managing editor of the Taiwan-based CommonWealth magazine, said her group of publications had received SOPA prizes for the eighth straight year.

"It's like a Pulitzer award in Asia. It's the most important award in Asia. Because of the awards, we've become reputable in both the domestic and Asian markets," she said.

"People know more about us and we are the only one in Taiwan to win so many awards," she added.

The Hong Kong bureau chief of the weekly English edition of the prizewinning Nikkei Asian Review, Yasuo Awai, said his publication had entered the awards competition for the first time, winning one category and gaining two honourable mentions. He said the weekly was popular in Japan. "But we also want to promote our weekly magazine outside Japan," he said prior the ceremony.

ASIA'S BEST JOURNALISTS Multiawarded Inquirer reporter Nancy Calauor-Carvajal and photojournalist Edwin Bacasmas flash their winning smiles and certificates after being named Journalist of the Year and winner of the Award for Excellence in News Photography, respectively, at the prestigious Society of Publishers in Asia (Sopa) 2015 Awards for Editorial Excellence, which honor the best journalism in the Asia-Pacific region. The awarding ceremonies were held at the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Center on Wednesday. JULIET JAVELLANA

HONG KONG—What a sweet, big night for the Inquirer!

The Philippines' No. 1 newspaper shone among the most excellent publications in the Asia-Pacific after its reporter Nancy Calauor-Carvajal and photojournalist Edwin Bacasmas were named the best of their peers in the region.

Carvajal was the biggest winner at the 2015 Awards for Editorial Excellence of the Society of Publishers in Asia (Sopa) when she was named Journalist of the Year, the most-coveted award given at the end of a glittering three-hour gala dinner at the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Center on Wednesday.

Carvajal bested two other finalists—Jonah M. Kessel of the International New York Times and Hannah Beech of Time—for the prestigious award.

The judges described Carvajal's winning body of work as a "courageous and excellent work in exposing official corruption in a country where journalists face death and physical attack."

Bacasmas, a multiawarded Inquirer photographer, won the Award for Excellence in News Photography for Category B (newspapers that circulate in one or two countries) for his photo titled "Home Street Home."

"The image of children sleeping in a cart reinforces the PDI's headline and the plight of millions of poor Filipinos," said the judges on Bacasmas' winning entry.

Bacasmas made his way to the stage still clicking his camera, prompting one of the Sopa officials waiting on stage to award him to remark, "He's still taking pictures!"

Bacasmas, a Hall of Famer at the Catholic Mass Media Awards, among his many awards, beat the South China Morning Post and Coconuts Media, both of which entered outstanding photos of Occupy Central, the democracy rallies in Hong Kong.

The photo of a big family sleeping in their home—a makeshift cart in one of the streets in Makati City—trumped the rest as the most outstanding news photo of the year in Asia. It came out as the wallpaper on the Oct. 28, 2014, issue of the Inquirer, to go with the day's top headline: 15M kids hungry—Poe.

Journalists, editors and news executives from Asia's leading publications gave Carvajal a big round of applause as she claimed the award for her outstanding body of work covering her continuing exposés on the multibillion-peso pork barrel scam involving lawmakers and the allegations of corruption against Vice President Jejomar Binay.

Her entries included parts of her 13-part series on the digital files of pork barrel scam principal whistle-blower Benhur Luy, which contained details of where more than P10 billion in pork barrel funds meant for projects for the poor were diverted to accounts of businesswoman Janet Lim-Napoles and to senators, congressmen and local officials.

Her other entries were her exclusive stories on the 350-hectare Batangas property allegedly owned by Binay and the P4-billion kickbacks from 10 infrastructure projects that allegedly went to Binay, when he was Makati mayor, and other city officials.

Previous major awards

Carvajal had won major Philippine journalism awards for her original groundbreaking series on the Naples pork barrel scam, including Most Outstanding Journalist of 2013 from the Center for Media Freedom and Responsibility.

Unlike in the past years, Sopa this year awarded only one journalist of the Year across the three award categories for editorial excellence.

The rest of the 18 award categories were divided into three groups:

Category A for English-language newspapers that circulate widely in three or more countries. English-language magazines with circulation greater than 50,000. English-language wire services and English-language websites with more than 5 million monthly uniques;

Category B for English-language newspapers that circulate primarily in one or two countries. English-language magazines with circulation under 50,000 and English-language websites with 5 million monthly uniques or below;

Category C for Chinese-language publications, websites and wire services.

As master of ceremony Tara Joseph, chief correspondent of Reuters TV Asia, read the three finalists for Journalist of the Year at the culmination of the long night, Carvajal and the Inquirer team present turned into a nervous wreck in a hall filled with perennial winners from Asia-based international media giants such as the International New York Times, Wall Street Journal and Bloomberg.

But when Joseph uttered the first syllable of the winner's name, Carvajal leapt to her feet in triumph. Bacasmas and the support team—research head Miner Generalao, reporter Christine Avendaño and this writer—screamed and shouted in the stunned room, which was illuminated by two giant screens where Carvajal's name and sample work were flashed.

'Indescribable' feeling

Even the table beside us—occupied by journalists of the New York Times—joined in the hearty applause, as did the rest of the audience as Carvajal confidently took center stage to claim her very well-deserved award—a simple framed plaque. Sopa chair Raymond Warhola, Sopa Awards chair Tom Leander and Jimmy Chiang, associate director general for investment promotion of Invest Hong Kong, presented the award.

"Can I? Over dinner I scribbled some notes," Carvajal quipped, clutching her plaque, as Joseph asked her if she could say a few words as the star of the night, eliciting appreciative laughter from the crowd of around 300 foreign and regional journalists.

The Inquirer brand

"To be a finalist with Hanna and Jonah is honor enough, but to receive the Journalist of the Year award from Sopa—the feeling is indescribable," Carvajal, her voice cracking, said as the audience listened to her intently.

"When I wrote the story exposing the misuse by some legislators of their pork barrel, I did not think of any award," she said. "But I wrote it in the tradition of the Philippine Daily Inquirer's brand of reporting. The exposé led to the investigation and arrest of three popular senators and a number of congressmen and also led to the declaration of the pork barrel as unconstitutional by our Supreme Court," Carvajal said.

The audience then gave her a bigger applause and a standing ovation.

Carvajal was besieged by a line of admirers and well-wishers well into midnight, including finalist Kessel who graciously went over to her seat to personally congratulate her. "I am honored to shake your hand," Kessel said.

Kessel's stories included a documentary and well-written features on oil tensions, jade trade exploitation, and e-cigarette boom in China and his profile on Joshua Wong, the leader of the student movement for democracy in Hong Kong.

Beech's entries included her extensive reports all over Asia—from Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, Tibet, the Fukushima nuclear meltdown, Hong Kong's democracy movement to Burma's stalling political reforms.

Sopa officials invited Carvajal to hold a lecture at the University of Hong Kong in October. Hong Kong University's Journalism and Media Studies assisted in the judging process. A number of media outfits and consultancies approached us to say they want to get to know the Inquirer a little bit more or have partnerships with us.

A tribute to editorial excellence in newspapers, magazines, wire services and websites read widely in Asia-Pacific, this year's awards drew finalists including those from the International New York Times, Financial Times, Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg, Time, Reuters, Associated Press, Nikkei, South China Morning Post, The Straits Times, Apple Daily, Jakarta Post, Jakarta Globe, Ming Pao, Myanmar Times, MINT, Business Weekly, among others. The Inquirer was the only media organization from the Philippines.

18 categories

Considered the most prestigious journalism awards in Asia, the Sopa Awards this year included 97 awards in 18 categories: reporting on women's issues; digital news; human rights reporting; feature writing; magazine design; lifestyle coverage; explanatory reporting; news photography; business reporting; information graphics; breaking news; opinion writing; editorial cartooning; environment reporting; feature photography; scoop; investigative reporting; and Journalist of the Year.

Warhola said the awards drew a record 662 entries this year, and a distinguished panel of 112 judges analyzed and selected the entries under a very rigid set of criteria.

"Anyone reading through the 662 entries for the 2015 Sopa Awards would have to admit it was a great year for journalism in Asia," head of judges Jeffrey Timmermans said. "Naturally, this made the judging panel's task especially difficult this year. The 112 industry professionals and academics who volunteered as judges this year spent many hours of their valuable time reviewing the entries, and then had an often agonizing choice at the end of the process."

Tom Leander, chair of the 2015 awards, said the distinguished panel of judges and their meticulous judging process was the guarantor of the independence and guardian of quality of the awards.

Warhola said Sopa, founded in 1982 and counts 40 local and regional media organizations, aims to celebrate excellence in journalism, bolster freedom of the press and share best practices across all local and regional publishing platforms in Asia-Pacific.

"We embrace the innovative technological advances that expand the numbers in our audience and better serve the information needs of our readers," Warhola said in his message.

"The time tested maxim holds that there is power in the written word. And its inherent power is palpable: to influence, educate, collaborate, shape ideas and mold opinions," Warhola added.

What went before

The Inquirer is no stranger to the Society of Publishers in Asia (Sopa) awards.

In 2003, the news story "Abadilla 5: Story out of martial law pages" won the Excellence in Specialized Reporting award in Category B, the award for local newspapers.

The five-part series, which came out on Dec. 10-14, 2002, was written by reporters Stella Ruth O. Gonzales, Juliet Labog-Javellana and Nancy Calaur-Carvajal. Managing editor Jose Ma. D. Nolasco was the project editor.

In the same year, the Inquirer also won the Best Opinion Piece in Category B for "Remembering," written by Conrado de Quiros in his column "There's the Rub" on Sept. 10, 2002.

Honorable mentions that year were "Seeing the world with American Eyes" by columnist Randy David (Best Opinion Piece in Category B) and the photograph "Going Off into the Sunset" by photojournalist Edwin Bacasmas (Best News Photography for Category B).

In 2004, the five-part special report by senior desk editor Juan V. Sarmiento Jr. on the purges in the Communist Party of the Philippines in the 1980s won honorable mention for excellence in human rights reporting in the then A (regional/large publications) category.

Bare-chested strongman

Bacasmas won honorable mention for the photo "The Strongman Cometh," which showed a Malacañang worker carrying the picture of a bare-chested Ferdinand Marcos, the former dictator.

Central Luzon correspondent Tonette Orejas also won an honorable mention for the Local Journalist Award.

In 2005, columnist Juan Mercado won honorable mention for Best Opinion Writing in Category B for his series of columns, "Treading Fine Lines," "Lobotomized Mindsets," "Murder with a Wink," "Do our Clocks Strike 13?" and "Amnesia Anyone?"

In 2006, reporter Blanche S. Rivera and editorial cartoonist Gilbert Daroy won honorable mention honors. Rivera was cited for environmental reporting and Daroy for editorial cartooning.

In 2008, the Inquirer won the Certificate of Excellence in the scoop category for a series of reports on the P500,000 cash handouts distributed in Malacañang to congressmen and local government officials in October 2007, as the House of Representatives was confronted with an impeachment complaint against then President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

The reports, which appeared in the newspaper's Oct. 12-14, 2007, issues, were written by reporters Norman Bordadora, Christian Esguerra, Michael Lim Ubac and Juliet Labog-Javellana, all based in Manila, and provincial correspondents Tonette Orejas (Central Luzon) and Jhunnex Napallacan and Jolene Bulambot (Visayas).

In the same year, the Inquirer also won Honorable Mention in two other categories—Excellence in Reporting of Breaking News and Excellence in News Photography.

Hostage drama

The Inquirer won Honorable Mention in Excellence in Reporting of Breaking News for its coverage of the hostage-taking of Tondo children by Armando Ducat, an engineer who had earlier put up a school for them. The stories were written by Volt Contreras, Tina Santos, Alcuin Papa, Juliet Labog-Javellana, Cenon Bibe, Allison Lopez and Tarra Quismundo.

In news photography, the pictures that won Sopa's nod were "Hostage Crisis," "Lanao elections," "Wall collapses in Antipolo" and "Makati mutiny," which saw print in the March 29, May 27, Aug. 9 and Nov. 30, 2007, issues of the newspaper. They were taken by Ryan Lim, Rem Zamora, Raffy Lerma and Bacasmas.

In 2010, business reporter Daxim Lucas won Honorable Mention for Excellence in Investigative reporting for his series on the Legacy Group banking scandal. The four-part series, which appeared in January 2009, was a follow-up to a story he himself broke on the financial troubles of the Legacy group of rural banks, and exposed the underlying scheme behind the group's acquisition spree of rural banks, which was to take advantage of the state-guaranteed insurance coverage of bank deposits.

Excellence in feature writing

Last year, environment reporter DJ Yap won Honorable Mention for Excellence in Feature Writing and was cited for his "vivid, impassioned, heartrending and tragic" account of his experience covering Supertyphoon "Yolanda" in Leyte in November 2013, the first time for the Inquirer to have won an award in the feature writing category.

The winning article, "Meeting a Monster," was Yap's account of his experience being stranded in Tacloban City for many hours after the storm smashed into the Eastern Visayas on Nov. 8, 2013.

柯文哲打破了台灣二十多年來的選舉常模,《商業周刊》也打破台灣媒體習慣的政治新聞分析方式,改以「企業管理」、「選戰如商戰」等創新角度,解剖柯文哲如何建立團隊、領導團隊、運用科技工具「分析市場」,以及「產品包裝」等特殊技術。並舉例他們如何運用網路聲量分析,以決定危機處理或趁勝追擊的策略。是一則兼顧內容豐富、視野高度和犀利觀點的選舉解讀報導,獲得首獎實質名歸。

獨家新聞獎佳作<1389扶擇 越簡報中國, 台灣越脆弱>評審一致認為這是一則相當深入的訪問, 影響深遠。就在2014年美國西岸時間六月十九日下午五點鐘, 洛杉磯的半島酒店, 美國前國務卿希拉蕊·柯林頓 (Hillary Rodham Clinton) 接受《商業周刊》獨家專訪, 這是她首度接受台灣媒體訪問。

希拉蕊首度接受以敏感的台海兩岸問題為主題的媒體訪談, 其中我們獲得許多關鍵性的答案, 諸如「台灣與中國越靠近, 會否使台美關係愈來愈遠」、「如何維持經濟交流的同時, 又能保持政治自主」、「是否依然認為中國的系統注定會失敗」等問題, 希拉蕊的回答也極具關鍵性, 截然不同於以往美國官員對於類似問題的迂迴閃避、外交辭令說法。

她提醒台灣須謹慎權衡與中國的經濟交流, 因為「失去經濟獨立, 會影響你們的政治獨立自主性」, 並認為兩岸的交流正面臨轉捩點, 台灣必須找出「到此為止, 不能越界」的底線。

考量到希拉蕊在美國政壇的份量, 以及她成為下屆總統的潛力, 她在《商業周刊》獨家專訪中, 如此直白的語言, 既是美台三角政治關係上的破天荒, 也對國際政局的未來發展極具參考性。

由亞洲出版業協會舉辦的卓越新聞獎 (SOPA), 是為表彰亞太區內主流報紙、雜誌、通訊社及網路出版刊物中的傑出代表而設, 一年評選一次。
